The objective of our experiment is to measure ionizing radiation, which can damage DNA, but using a previous RockOn experiment it will also measure acceleration, pressure, temperature, and humidity. With the help from the Delaware Space Grant Consortium (DESGC) this will be our teams’ first year participating in RockSat-C and the intention is to establish a permanent team at the University of Delaware that will participate each year.